Once upon a time, there was a young girl named Lily who loved to cook. She would spend hours in the kitchen with her mom, learning new recipes and techniques. One day, Lily's mom gave her a tablespoon and a yardstick and told her to measure out the ingredients for a cake. Lily carefully measured out the flour, sugar, and baking powder, using the yardstick to make sure everything was just right. She mixed the ingredients together and poured the batter into a cake pan.

Lily was so excited to see how her cake would turn out. She put it in the oven and waited patiently for it to bake. As she waited, she decided to make some homemade frosting to go on top of the cake.

She got out the ingredients and began to measure them out, but she quickly realized that she had lost her tablespoon. She searched all over the kitchen, but it was nowhere to be found. Feeling frustrated, Lily remembered the yardstick her mom had given her.
