

ADAPTATIONS

How Butterflies Survive

camouflage

The dead leaf butterfly's wings perfectly blend with dry foliage to hide from predators.

monarch

mimicry

The viceroy mimics the monarch's bright colors. Predators avoid the monarch, so they avoid the viceroy too.

viceroy

migration

Each year, millions of monarch butterflies travel thousands of miles from Canada and the USA to reach warmer overwintering sites in Mexico.

