

TWO TRUTHS & A LIE: FROGS

Frogs can breathe partly through their skin.

Frogs shed and often eat their own old skin.

All frogs have teeth for chewing their food.

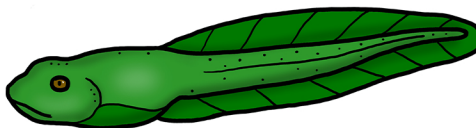

SUPERSTARWORKSHEETS.COM

TWO TRUTHS & A LIE: FROGS

A group of frogs is called an army.

Frogs use their bulging eyes to help push food down their throat.

Frogs stay the exact same color as adults that they were as tadpoles.

SUPERSTARWORKSHEETS.COM

TWO TRUTHS & A LIE: FROGS

The Goliath frog is the largest frog species in the world.

All frogs live only in tropical rainforests.

Some frogs, like the wood frog, can survive being partly frozen in winter.

SUPERSTARWORKSHEETS.COM

TWO TRUTHS & A LIE: FROGS

Poison dart frogs get most of their toxins from their diet in the wild.

Poison dart frogs are the largest frogs in the world.

Glass frogs have see-through skin on their undersides.

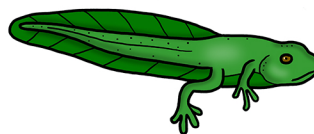

SUPERSTARWORKSHEETS.COM

TWO TRUTHS & A LIE: FROGS

Frogs can close their eyes completely, the same way humans do.

Frogs are cold-blooded, so their body temperature changes with their surroundings.

A frog's call is unique to its species.

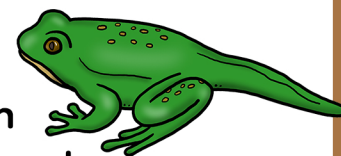

SUPERSTARWORKSHEETS.COM

TWO TRUTHS & A LIE: FROGS

A tadpole and an adult frog eat the exact same diet.

Frogs live on every continent except Antarctica.

Tadpoles breathe using gills, while adult frogs breathe using lungs and skin.

SUPERSTARWORKSHEETS.COM